Principal, WENDY HIGH SCHOOL

Attitude shapes our community

In the busy rhythm of school life-classes, activities, deadlines-it is easy to forget that the true strength of our community lies not only in achievement, but in attitude. Kindness, compassion, and small, thoughtful efforts shape the character of our school far more deeply than we often realize.

Kindness is strength. Respect is honour. Responsibility is leadership. These are not small gestures-they are the pillars that hold our school together. When you lift a classmate, when you honour your teachers, and when you give your best effort, you are building a culture of trust, unity, and pride.

Your attitude is your weapon, your shield, and your legacy. It can inspire courage, ignite compassion, and transform indifference into a sense of belonging. Let us choose to live with empathy, integrity, and determination every single day.

Together, we will create a school where kindness is our tradition, respect is our identity, and responsibility is our pride.

Every small act matters

Small acts of kindness can create a big difference in our school community. A kind word, helping a friend, respecting teachers, or keeping our surroundings clean may seem small, but together they build a positive and caring environment. When students practice good values in their daily life, they inspire others and make the school a better place for everyone. Let us remember that even the smallest good deed can bring a big change. If each one of us takes one positive step every day, together we can create a meaningful and lasting impact.

— Mr. Kaushlesh Tiwari, Vice Principal

Values that shape our future

As educators, we believe that values are as important as knowledge. Kindness, compassion, and respect are the small seeds that grow into a strong and caring society. Every gentle word, helping hand, and thoughtful action can make a meaningful difference in someone's day. We encourage all our students to remember that even the smallest act of goodness carries great power. When we choose kindness and empathy in our daily lives, we help create a happier school environment and a better world for everyone. Let us continue to make a positive impact together.

— Ms. Jyoti Kalsi, Headmistress

When kindness took the lead

Sometimes the smallest gestures create the biggest impact. Recently, a simple act in our school corridor showed how kindness can spark meaningful change. One morning, a junior student dropped his books, and before anyone else could react, a classmate stepped forward to help. What seemed like a routine moment inspired others nearby to offer support as well. Soon, students who rarely interacted began helping one another-by sharing notes, guiding someone on their first day, or simply offering an encouraging smile.

This chain of kindness reminded us that leadership is not always about grand actions; it often begins with a small, thoughtful step. As Head Boy, I believe our school grows stronger when each of us chooses empathy. A single good deed can create a ripple that reaches far beyond what we imagine.

— Aryan Chandel Head Boy, Grade 12B

Kindness that shapes our school

Kindness is a simple, powerful, and free act of compassion. In an educational environment, small acts play a significant role in shaping a positive and supportive atmosphere. Simple gestures-such as offering assistance or acknowledging someone's efforts-can lead to meaningful and often unexpected positive outcomes. When students feel valued and supported, their motivation, participation, and overall academic engagement naturally improve.

Such small acts truly make a big difference. This reminds us that compassion does not require grand efforts; it only needs awareness and a willingness to care.

Blooming little stars

Our preschool children celebrated a delightful Flower Parade Day in school. The little ones looked adorable as they came dressed in beautiful flower props and colorful headgears representing different flowers. They confidently walked in the parade and spoke a few lines about the flower they were portraying. The activity helped them build confidence and learn about nature in a fun way. It was truly a joyful and vibrant event filled with smiles, learning, and excitement for everyone.

Reading—Food for the Mind

Reading is as important for children as meals are for the body. It nourishes their minds, imagination, and knowledge. Children enjoy spending time in the library, exploring colourful and interesting books during their reading period. They love turning the pages, discovering new stories, and learning new things. Along with reading books, watching related educational videos makes the experience even more engaging and enjoyable.

Go green with 3Rs

It is very important for children to understand the value of Reduce, Reuse, and Recycle in their daily lives. To spread awareness, a meaningful and knowledgeable activity was organized in the school. Teachers presented a small skit to explain the importance of saving our environment. Students from Grades 1 to 5 also participated enthusiastically by preparing a skit and taking a pledge to protect the Earth. They creatively made useful items like pencil boxes and medicine boxes using unused materials, making the activity both fun and educational.

A fun-filled learning trip

Our preschool children had a joyful and learning-filled field trip to Nana Rao Park in Bithoor. The little ones were excited to explore the beautiful park, enjoy the swings, and play fun games with their friends. Along with the fun activities, they also learned about the historical story connected with the place. It was a wonderful day that combined enjoyment, exploration, and learning outside the classroom.

Fitness, fun and relaxation

Physical Education plays a very important role in the overall development of students. Whether it is playing in the playground, enjoying indoor games, or practicing yoga, these activities help children stay active, refreshed, and relaxed. After their busy academic schedule, students eagerly wait for their Physical Education period as it gives them a chance to unwind, have fun, and build teamwork and sportsmanship.

Story: one clap that changed everything

Digital safety has become very important in our daily lives because most of us use mobile phones, the internet, and social media every day. Students use them for studying, chatting, watching videos, and searching for information. However, along with the benefits, there are also risks.

First of all, we should never share our personal information, such as passwords, home addresses, phone numbers, or school details, with strangers on the internet. Many people create fake accounts to try to get personal information. We should only communicate with people we know in real life.

Secondly, we should be careful while using social media. Not everything we see online is true. Sometimes people spread fake news or false information. Therefore, before believing anything, we should check trusted sources.

Also, we should think carefully before posting photos or comments because once something is posted online, it can remain there forever.

Another important point is to use strong passwords and not share them with anyone, not even friends. We should also avoid clicking on unknown links because they may contain viruses or scams.

Parents and teachers also play an important role in digital safety. They should guide students on the safe use of the internet and monitor their online activities. Students should feel comfortable sharing their concerns if they face any problems online.

In conclusion, digital technology is very useful for learning and communication, but safety is necessary. If we use the internet wisely and carefully, we can enjoy its benefits without facing risks. – Aastha Singh Grade 9 'C'
